

2017 Winter/Spring Internship

The Spirit of 608 (www.spiritof608.com) is currently seeking applicants for winter/spring 2017 internships. Interns will work closely with the company founder and a small team and have the opportunity to learn and practice advanced digital and audio media skills across the company's web sites and weekly podcast.

Born in San Francisco and currently raised in Charlottesville, the Spirit of 608 is a digital media company focused on elevating and advancing female entrepreneurs, socially-responsible businesses and ethical brands working at the intersection of fashion, entrepreneurship, sustainability + tech. Along with our digital publications, our weekly Spirit of 608 podcast reaches thousands of listeners each month with stories and advice from female founders. Past guests have included WhoWhatWear's Katherine Power, The RealReal's Julie Wainwright, Minted's Mariam Naficy, Dogeared Jewelry's Marcia Clarke Maizel, Evrnu's Stacy Flynn and many others.

Responsibilities include:

- Weekly researching and reporting to create stories on ethical and sustainable fashion and the entrepreneurs and personalities behind these brands
- Support for the weekly podcast, including basic audio editing
- An interest in digital media, entrepreneurial journalism and a willingness to learn basic audio editing are fundamental to this role. We will teach audio editing skills to the right candidate.
- Experience with Wordpress, Audacity, Slack and general all-around digital savviness preferred.
- Interns will be asked to create an original, self-directed, reported audio or media project for publication during the program.

The Spirit of 608 is led by Lorraine Sanders, a longtime journalist covering the business of fashion and the intersection of fashion and technology for publications such as WWD, FastCompany and the San Francisco Chronicle, among others. Learn more at www.spiritof608.com.

To apply, email hello@spiritof608.com and explain in 400 words or less why you're interested, what your availability is and give one example of an ethical business or brand you've witnessed making a positive change in your world.
