ADMINISTRATIVE POSITIONS HELD

Founding Chair, Media Studies Department, University of Virginia (2006-2011)
 In my capacity as Founding Chair of the Media Studies Department, I raised a small program to departmental status, tripled the number of faculty members, and helped to build what is now a sizeable major department with plans for graduate education at University of Virginia. I also procured enough funding to begin the concentration and program in Media Policy through alumni donations.

Founding Director, Virginia Film Festival (2006-2009)
 For three years I shepherded this organization with a sizeable budget to record profits. I also presided over the winning of a three-year grant from the American Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences, several other local grants, and many large donations including a $100,000 donation from Diane Naughton for a new projector.

Associate Director of Media Studies, University of Illinois (1995-2004)
 I administered the undergraduate program in Media Studies for what is now the College of Media.

Producer, Roger Ebert Festival of Overlooked Films (1998-2004)
 I supervised student involvement in the Roger Ebert film festival at the University of Illinois. I also participated in programming with Mr. Ebert featuring women and film, and chaired a yearly panel on the participation of women in the industry.

CONSULTING POSITIONS

2004 – Disney Internet Group, Burbank, California. Consulted on the development of quality educational software for children 2-8 years old

2002-03 – Hired by Dr. Stephen Briggs, Tavistock Clinic, London, to consult in the preparation of a grant for the European Social Research Council, entitled “Suicidality in Adolescence.”

1994-95 – Hired by the Dean of the College of Letters, Arts and Sciences, University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, to consult with the College as it evaluated and reorganized the program in communications. Duties included attending weekly meetings in Ann Arbor during the fall of 1994, co-organizing focus groups with current undergraduate and graduate students about the program, helping to design and evaluate a survey of present and past students, collecting data about comparable programs nationwide, and contributing to the final report which was presented to the Executive Committee of the College.

1992 – Hired by the Japan Productivity Center in Tokyo, Japan to consult with them on the issue of sexual harassment in the workplace. I lectured to Japanese executives on the issue, organized workshops with Japanese executives designed to raise consciousness on the issue, and lectured on the general issue of changes in Japanese family and personal life during relocation of managerial families to the U.S.

1992 – Hired by the Fund to Improve Post-Secondary Education to help evaluate grant proposal submitted to the Fund.
